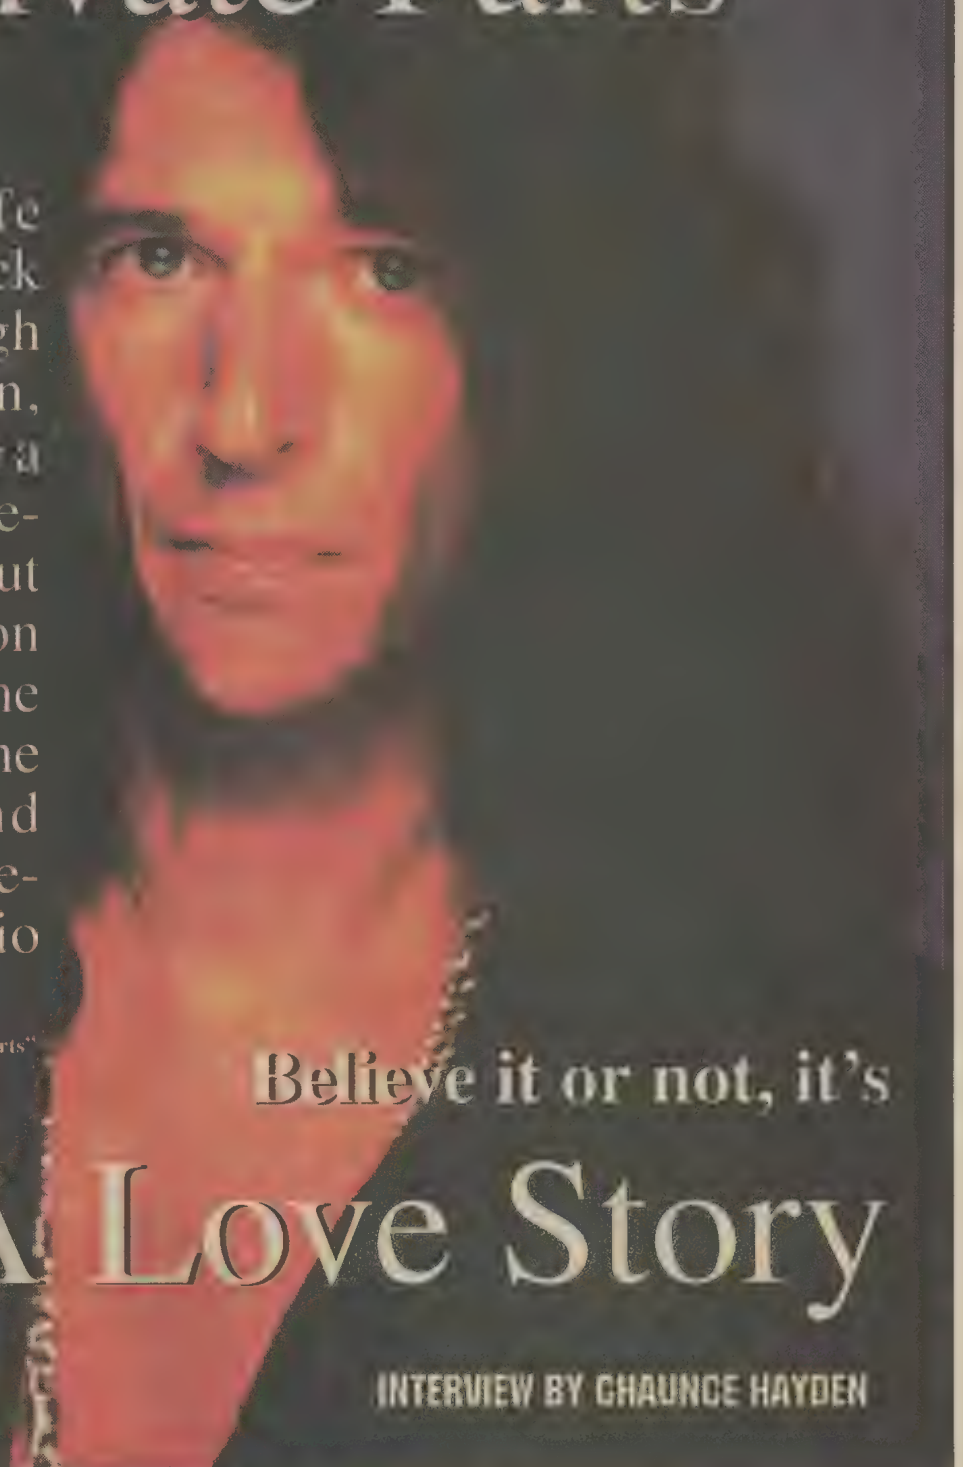
HOWARD STERN'S "Private Parts"



"To my wife Alison who stuck with me through thick and thin, who never gave a shit about material things or put any pressure on me, who let me finger her on the first date, and who loved me before I had a radio show."

Dedication from the book "Private Parts"

Believe it or not, it's

A Love Story

INTERVIEW BY CHAUNCE HAYDEN

The undisputed king of radio, Howard Stern, is about to prove once and for all that he truly is the "King Of All Media." The inventor of shock radio is making his motion picture debut in "Private Parts" (a March 7th release date is scheduled). In addition to being the host of "The Howard Stern Show," the No. 1 daily syndicated radio show in the world, he is the author of the phenomenal best-selling books Private Parts and Miss America.

When Stern's autobiography, Private Parts, was first published by Simon & Schuster in 1993, it was an instant success, immediately soaring to the top of all the major bestseller lists in the U.S. and becoming the fastest-selling autobiography ever. His book signings held in cities around the country drew huge crowds.

The hardcover book spent four weeks in the No. 1 position, 13 weeks in the top 10, and 20 weeks on the New York Times bestseller list. The paperback remained on the New York Times bestseller list for 15 weeks. Private Parts has sold more than 2 million copies to date.

In addition, Stern's New Year's Eve Pay-Per-View special grossed upwards of $40 million.

When not ranting and raving over the 92.3 K-Rock airwaves (6 a.m. to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday) Stern spends his time with his wife Alison and their three children on Long Island.

The following interview took place during a round-table sit down with the press during the "Private Parts" press junket at the Rihga Royal Hotel in New York City.

Chauncé Hayden: The movie version of your best-selling autobiography, "Private Parts" seems to be the pinnacle of your long career. Are you satisfied with the final results?

Howard Stern: It's actually more than I thought it would be. In fact I was quite shocked when we finally got to show the film to a test audience in Seattle. I had never been involved in anything like that. I didn't even know what a test audience was. The audience was given the opportunity to write down its feelings and the overwhelming response was that the film was hilarious. And when they said stuff like "It inspired me to follow my dreams," and "It's the funniest movie I've seen since 'M*A*S*H,'" that went beyond my wildest dreams. I could not believe how much they loved the film.

Rather than a movie about "The Howard Stern Show," "Private Parts'" central theme seems to be the relationship between you and your wife, Alison. Would you agree?

Absolutely. I think she is the humanity of the film. If I had made a movie that basically showed a lot of the radio bits that I did and it was just me running around the studio and doing my thing it would be no different than what you get

FOR THE LOVE OF HOWARD STERN!

Last Tuesday I spoke with Rick Nielsen of Cheap Trick, who have a new disc, a tribute album, and a appearance on Howard Stern's "Private Parts" soundtrack. Look for the interview next month. But here's a question for Rick that can't wait. What do you think of Howard Stern? Rick Nielsen: "He's a handsome man. He's a phenomenon. He's a funny guy, but he's a serious guy. He's like myself in some ways. You gotta go have a little fun with things. He gets under a lot of people's skin, but for the most part, he's pretty on the money. The truth hurts, ladies and gentlemen."

Dog Voices is at Yakety Yak in Clifton this Thursday, February 27th. I asked Monté what he thought of Howard. "Howard Stern has one of the best jobs in the world, next to mine, of course."

Wild Bill of Pleasurable Piercings said, "I'm one of Howard's biggest fans. I admire his honesty and I appreciate the fact that he always speaks his mind." Check out the Alice In Chains in-store this Friday at Pleasurable.

I asked Keith Roth from The Shag about Howard (are you beginning to notice a trend here?). "I love him. I saw all the coming attractions for the movie and I'm excited to see it."

I spoke with Nancy Sirianni (Jackie The Jokeman's wife). Her band, Big Orange Marble, has a new release, so I asked her about Howard. "What could I possibly say about Howard that he hasn't already said about himself? He knows I fucking love him."

You may turn the page.

Dan.

"Private Parts" Various Artists, Warner Bros.

You listen to Howard on the radio, you watch him on E! (even though the cable station chooses to bleep or blur anything PG). You loved his books. What's left? Howard Stern's music. I'm not talking about Electric Comicbook, his teenage rock band, but the "Private Parts" soundtrack on Warner Brothers Records. It's a mixture of music Howard played as a young DJ, bits from the movie and new groups Howard admires. The best part of the soundtrack is the musical pairings of LL Cool J with The Chili Peppers and Ozzy Osbourne with Type O Negative. This disc could also be the start of a promising career for Howard's father. "The Ben Stern Megamix" is worth the price of the disc on its own. "The Great American Nightmare" proves Rob Zombie relies heavily on studio gimmickry, so much so that when Howard and he trade off vocals, it's hard to tell the difference. Also on this disc are AC/DC, Porno for Pyros, Marilyn Manson, Green Day and Cheap Trick.

MORSELS

As promised in last week's column, here are my Tips For The Groom-To-Be for any male readers who are as confused about this whole wedding planning thing as I was:

The most important thing to remember, boys (and when I say important I mean the kind of important like "It is important not to jump out of an airplane without a parachute" important) is to agree with absolutely everything the bride-to-be suggests. If she looks you straight in the eye and says, "You know, I think I would like to have a pack of stray dogs dressed in little tuxedos barking during the entire ceremony. Is that alright with you?" Your immediate answer should be "Yes, that sounds great!" If you hesitate in saying "Yes, that sounds great!" for even a nanosecond, the next 48 hours of your life will be spent apologizing and dodging sharp-edged wedding favors.

You see, the wedding day is geared solely toward making the bride woozily happy enough to actually marry a loser like you. But don't worry, guys. You'll have the next 40 years to disgust and disappoint your mate, so just practice that "Yes, that sounds great" for now, will ya?

One of the more challenging aspects of the engagement period is the registering for gifts. This consists of trudging around a store for several months at a time, doing things like picking out a china pattern while the rest of the civilized world watches the play-off games on TV. Now, if you're like me (and I'm guessing you are), this will be your first encounter with china patterns and crystal stemware. For the last 10 years, the only things I've had in my kitchen cabinets were three plastic beer mugs and a chopstick. But soon you will be confronted with, among other things, the dreaded Search For Silverware.

As you wander through the store, your fianceé will ask you, in all seriousness, "What kind of silverware do you think we should get?"

"Uh... silverware? Well, I like the forks that have the little sharp things on the end of them that helps you pick up the food, and for the spoons, I like the kind that have that oval indentation so the soup doesn't fall out of them," you say.

This is, of course, a totally unacceptable answer. As the groom will discover, the average department store has approximately 50 million different silverware patterns, each one infinitesimally different from the next. You and your lovely bride will be expected to examine each and every one of them until you reach a joint decision, which will soon be discarded when you discover that your choice does not match the china you've picked out. So the search begins all over again and inevitably ends in a huge fight where the old "That time you went out with your loser friends and ended up naked in a Tijuana jail and I had to fly down to bail you and your buddies out and I had to miss my niece's fifth birthday party, you insensitive bastard, you" story is dragged out.

So, whichever pattern she asks your opinion on, please say, "Yes, that sounds great!" Okay?

the BARFLY

By Alan Tecchio

Z Bar

I spent Valentine's night at the Z-Bar, (206 Avenue A.) Always the romantic, downstairs bartender Dianne had rose petals adorning her glass-shard bar and a gorgeous sequin dress to match. The coolest jukebox in all of NYC pounded out the sounds of bands like Quicksand, Op Ivy, Sabbath, AC/DC and Handsome throughout the night and many a Negra Modello was greedily chugged by myself and my cohorts. Rumor has it that the bar will be undergoing a renovation in the near future. Knowing the artistic stylings of manager Antonio, (just check out the downstairs bar to see exactly what I mean,) it will be an awesome sight.

Into dark beers? Suck down a pint of Ramstein Dark Wheat at Sidewinders Grill & Alehouse in Garfield, NJ. This hidden treasure of a place has an unparalleled selection of beers and some damn good food too. Owner Danny turned me onto this nifty new brew and I'm very glad that he did. Guinness is great, but you should try to vary the dark side of your pallet from time to time. Sidewinders has more than enough frothing specialties to choose from, so you really have no excuse not to go.

Cell Block

I stopped in to The Cell Block located at 411 North Church Rd. (Rt. 94) in Sparta, NJ recently. The Walt Whitney Band was playing and I had also heard so much about this place's killer kitchen that I just had to check it out. First off, the food was first rate and owner Gary was quite the friendly host. Secondly, they also served Negra Modello! It's just my luck though, that they were out of it when I stopped in. Anyway Walt ripped it up as usual with some of the most heartfelt blues I've ever heard-no joke. I can't believe that these guys have not busted out huge after all of their years playing the circuit. You're really losing out if you don't go out and see them when they play around. Kudos to them for never quitting and cheers to the guys in Urban Cactus who were hanging out there that night. Call the Cell Block at (201) 579-0072 to find out what they have on their upcoming agenda.

CONGRATULATIONS HOWARD!

That's right, it's time again for the Annual Dogvoices Ski Trip. For four years running now, the world's nuttiest cover band has put together a trip befitting of their over-the-edge lifestyles and this year is no different. Up Vermont way, where the weather is not quite as unseasonably warm as it has been around these parts, you can still get some good skiing done at Bromley Mountain. Known as Vermont's premier midsize family resort, Bromley has just invested a great many dollars in a capital improvement plan for the 1997/98 winter season; 2.4 million dollars to be precise! The centerpiece of this plan is a new high speed detachable quad lift chair. I love these things! They whiz you to the top of the mountain with the greatest of ease and can help you to get in many more runs than you normally could on a standard slow-ass lift. Call Bromley to see what their plans are for the rest of the season at (802) 824-5522.

Fashion Forward

By Krys Longan

This week, in honor of the eagerly-anticipated Howard Stern bio-flick, "Private Parts," I am devoting my column to the "King Of All Media's" personal style.

I was lucky enough to see a preview of "Private Parts" before the movie was released to the general public, and rumor had it that the many wigs Howard wore were the real stars of the show. This is not really the case, although it is through His Majesty's royal mane that we see the evolution of Stern. When we first see Howard portraying himself as a nerdy college student, he is sporting an appropriately dorky do...sort of a miniature Afro and matching mustache. When he gets his first big break, he shaves off the 'stache and begins to let his hair grow into sort of a long bob. He is approaching coolness. Fast forward to his NBC years, and his hair has reached his shoulders. As his entourage of Robin Quivers (who wears a rather unflattering hairstyle throughout the movie, FYI), Fred Norris and Jackie Martling join him at NBC to engage in ground-breaking radio aircasts, Stern's hair becomes a long, wild mane. And by the end of the movie, when he has crushed all his enemies to dust and is surrounded by his adoring wife Alison and their three adorable children, his hair is so long, so thick, and so glossy that he looks as if he's about to audition for the role of the Cowardly Lion in a remake of "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz."

As for Howard's mode of dress, well, think heavy metal, right down to the numerous chunky silver rings adorning his digits, to the dark sunglasses almost perpetually perched on his nose, to his penchant for wearing jeans and t-shirts with the occasional vest thrown over them. It is definitely a style, it is even a personal statement, but it's not one that is ever going to shake up the pages of GQ. On the other hand, it is pure Howard Stern. And after all, his entire show revolves around the concept that none of us ever leave behind the baser teenage instincts we now mask in adulthood. So why not dress the part?

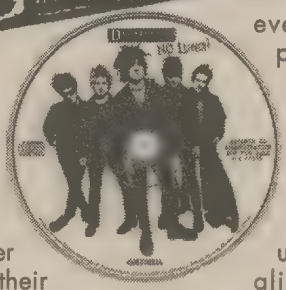
LOCAL MUSIC NEWS

Wassup, friends and neighbors? Many music fans were pleasantly surprised last Wednesday night when they headed for Connections in Clifton, NJ to catch a show by a band billed as "D.G.I." The surprise was that there is no band called D.G.I.—at least, not playing at Connections. Turns out that D.G.I. stands for "D Generation Incognito." For those of you not in the know, D Generation is a New York punk band that has actually (as the phrase goes) made it. They're signed to Columbia Records, they've released two albums, and they've even been played on that paragon of New York heavy rock radio, K-Rock (insert oohs and aahs here). Thankfully, however, they haven't forgotten where they came from. They often play the smaller clubs on the circuit, either under their actual name or their alias—in the past month, they've played Connections as both. It's not unknown in the industry for a band to play under a pseudonym, either for kicks (on the road, it seems, you have to take the laughs where you can find 'em) or as a sort of payback to their die hard fans. Usually a band will choose a song title as their alias, or some other word or phrase that will click with their "true" fans. D Gen was a little less obvious. The only clue, aside from the gig's advertisement touting "A Very Special Event," and "Do not miss this one!!!" was that instead of periods in the D.G.I. logo, they used the D Gen signature star-in-a-circle. Anyway, surprised or unsurprised, the fans were treated to a great show, with D Gen cranking out some of their best tunes, including "She Stands There" off their latest disc ("No Lunch") and debuting a new tune, "Cornered." The D Generates weren't the only down-to-earth local musicians on hand that night, though. No less an icon than Joey Ramone was hanging out, introducing one of the opening acts, The Independents, as his "favorite new band" and even singing "Blitzkrieg Bop" with them. Kudos go out to big talents and small egos.



In other local-bands-making-it news: tune in to ABC-TV's "Turning Point" tomorrow night to catch a profile on Reprise Records artists Love In Reverse, who hail from none other than the Garden State. The program will recount the trials and tribulations of an underground band as they got signed and recorded their first album ("I Was Here"). The band started life under the moniker Dog and changed their name to Love In Reverse in 1995. Last year they toured with Gravity Kills and now they're in the studio recording their second release. Check it out...ABC, Feb. 27, 10pm.

on the radio or the E Channel. The idea behind "Private Parts" was to reveal something new. Something that I hadn't shown the audience before. To me the key to this movie was the relationship I have with my wife because for years people had said to me, what kind of woman would marry Howard Stern?

Good question.

(Laughs) That is a good question! It's got to be a unique woman because there is betrayal in our relationship. My dream was to be honest on the air and tell people everything that was going on in my life. That was not my wife's dream. The idea that this woman fell in love with me and was willing to travel the country with me and be such a close friend to me was remarkable. And yet we have this issue in our lives which is this radio show. And when I go on the air and I talk about her miscarriage, I know I've done wrong and yet...(pause). There's some sort of character flaw in me and yet she continues to love me.

Why?

Because we have a true friendship between us and a true relationship between us. There's something there—some spark. That's what I wanted to show in the movie. That's a side of me that the audience has never seen. I've always said, when I'm on the air I'm probably the most truthful about my life. That's the real me. Somehow I think when I'm off the air, I'm role playing.

You went through dozens of scripts before finally reading one that met your approval. What was that process like for you?

Two years before ["Private Parts" producer] Ivan Reitman got involved, I was involved in a script situation where I thought every script was dumber than the next. It started to look as if the film wasn't going to be made because I had final script approval and I rejected every script there was.

What was the problem with them?

I rejected them for various reasons, mostly because they were over the top comedies that I think were dumb, boring and dull like every other comedy that's been coming out. I'm convinced Dan Aykroyd doesn't read his scripts. And I love Dan Aykroyd. I thought he was brilliant. But man, he's just not paying attention to his audience or he apparently doesn't care. So every two weeks I would turn down a script until the word was that I'm afraid to do a film. But I wasn't afraid. Remember, I'm the guy who went on MTV and showed his disgusting butt cheeks. I'm not afraid of anything. I just wouldn't do a bad movie. I mean, some of those scripts had me being chased around the house by Richard Simmons! Where's the reality in that? Ivan Reitman, who was a fan of the show, seemed to have the right vision and in six months he came back with a script that I knew was the right formula. He then put me together with Betty Thomas, whom I can't praise enough. She is brilliant.

How accurate is the film in terms of the sometimes turbulent relationship you had with your father?

It's true. My father really did call me a moron and an idiot. In fact it got really vicious at times. But deep down inside I always felt my father loved me.

Then why the name calling?

I felt he did it because he was insecure about me. He felt that I wasn't going to be a success or that I wasn't going to be able to make a living. So there's sort of this, "Hey dad, look I made it," kind of thing about the movie. I mean I suppose I wasn't socially acceptable as a child growing up, in terms that I wasn't this great, popular person. So there's sort of that vindication as well. Just like when I wrote the book, Private Parts. That was the most gratifying thing I had ever done. Because for the first time I started to get acceptance among critics. I didn't think that mattered to me but all of a sudden it did. I liked the feeling.

Obviously you have millions of fans who idolize you across the country. But how does it make you feel knowing that there are those who don't know you, nor have they ever listened to your radio show, but who hate you?

It's a funny thing, that hate thing. I once did an interview with John Stossel from the television show "20/20" and he brought that up to me and I said to him, "Let's go out on the streets of New York and see who hates me. Let's go up to the average hard working guys and see what they say." So we went down the street and we ran into men and women of all different ethnic groups and they all came up to me and said that they love the show. I think there is a higher acceptance level out there than people will admit to. I know one thing and that is that I make people happy from 6 to 10 in the morning, which is the most miserable time of the day. It's a horrid time of day. People have said to me that they've been in their car for an hour and a half, they suddenly pull into a garage, then they have to sit there for 10 more minutes to listen to a bit I'm doing on the air. Yes, there are those who don't get the radio show or it's not their particular cup of tea or brand of humor and I think those are the people who identify themselves as hating me. Of course, then there are those who hate me but who actually listen every day. I'm not sure if those people are just voyeurs or fans.

Which would you say was more challenging, writing the book Private Parts or making the film based on the book?

The most challenging thing I have ever done in my career was the book. I still to this day don't know how I got that done. I certainly didn't know if I could write a book. I knew I could be funny talking into a microphone but I didn't know if I could sit at my computer and be funny. Writing to me is the hardest thing in the world. I wanted to make sure that I sounded like myself. I remember when I first started to write the book I would sit there and check the thesaurus and all the lame crap that people do. Then I remember thinking to myself, you know what, just write this the way you talk. And it was so difficult for me and so lonely. I would see my wife and kids outside my window playing and I would be inside trying to type this thing. I had four months to type this book and I'm thinking to myself, "Oh, my God how am I going to get this done?" I would say that the movie was the second hardest thing I've ever done.

> "MY FATHER REALLY DID CALL ME A MORON AND AN IDIOT. IN FACT IT GOT REALLY VICIOUS AT TIMES. BUT DEEP DOWN INSIDE I ALWAYS FELT MY FATHER LOVED ME."

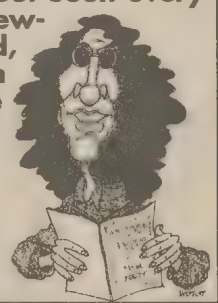
They say one of the most challenging things an actor can do is play himself. How difficult was it for you?

It was weird because people said to me, "Hey you're playing yourself, that's got to be pretty easy." And I said, "Well in theory, yeah. But it's not so easy. I can't present myself today as the Howard of yesterday."

Was there anything you did to help yourself be the person you were 20 years ago?

I studied a lot of videotape of myself. I studied my old air checks. I started to notice things like whenever I was on the air early in my career I was always out of breath because I was so nervous. My demeanor as a 20-year-old was this very insecure, shy, quiet guy. Also, revealing that sweetness with my wife in the film was very difficult for me in terms of making sure that it was real. By the way, I credit ["Private Parts" Director] Betty Thomas with all of this.

In the past you've been extremely sensitive to what the media writes about you. Soon every paper and magazine will be reviewing your movie. With that in mind, is there any one particular film critic whose opinion means more to you than the others?



No, not really. In fact I couldn't wait for people in the press to see this thing. The reaction I've gotten from the press has been nothing short of outstanding.

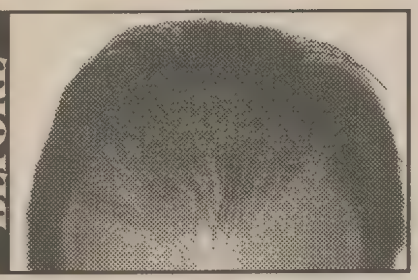
WHY BE BALD!

If you don't have to be?

The Surgical Center For Hair Restoration

265 Kinderkamack Road, Westwood, NJ, 07675
201-664-5860



You've been looking real good lately. You're at the gym more than you're at the fridge. You've tossed your Twinkies for Snack-Wells and you're actually finding new ways to enjoy flounder. You've quit smoking and you're flossing regularly. You're feeling good about yourself and yet your gift list still reads something like: A beret, a baseball cap from your favorite team, a baseball cap from your not so favorite team, a bandanna-you get the picture.

Your mother says, "darling, don't worry. You have a wonderful face and a charming personality. So what if you're thinning a little." Your sister agrees and your dog doesn't seem to care one way or the other. But you're fed up. You're tired of taking your dates line-dancing so you have an excuse to wear your cowboy hat. Perhaps it's time for you to toss your hat into the ring and do something about your hairline.

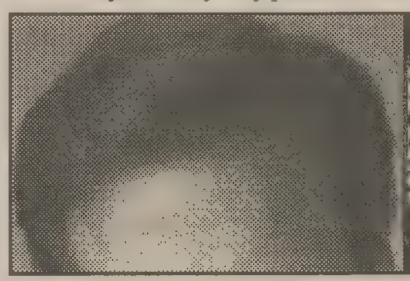
On today's cutting edge in the world of cosmetic surgery is a new, revolutionary approach to hair replacement called micro-grafting. This process begins with the removal of a thin strip of hair from the fuller donor area in the back of the head. This strip is then dissected into many smaller "micrografts," each containing anywhere from 1 to 6 hairs. The donor area is then sutured closed leaving a very fine line scar which is immediately covered by the overlying hair. These micrografts are then implanted into small cuts made in the sparse recipient area where baldness is likely to occur. Once transplanted these grafts are permanent. You can style, swim, tug, party and wear those hats whenever it suits you.

Gone are the days of looking like a sad mannequin. Unlike the fake, obvious look of the old plugs and grafts of the past, micrografting creates an extremely natural and aesthetically pleasing look. Dr. John Colaneri wouldn't have it any other way. A general surgeon practicing in New Jersey for nearly 15 years, Dr. Colaneri was personally trained to perform the mini and micrografting procedure by Dr. Dominic A. Brandy, who pioneered the technique.

Comfortably set on a street in Westwood, New Jersey is Gentlemen's Quarters, a full service salon and home of the Surgical Center for Hair Restoration. This neat, well-maintained facility houses consultation offices and several surgical suites as well as the salon area. At Gentlemen's Quarters, Dr. Colaneri and his expert staff make dreams come true for men and yes-women of varying ages who desire an end to thinning and baldness.

At Gentlemen's Quarters, the client is the focus and every effort is made to insure individualized service and preferred results. In most cases, the procedure takes several hours to complete. A local anaesthetic is administered to eliminate the ooch ouch and there is minimal discomfort experienced afterwards. There is a 1-2 week post-op period, but it's a small price to pay when you consider the rewards. Most clients require 2-4 treatments every 3-4 months to achieve their desired look.

Before, during and after your procedure, Dr. Colaneri and his staff will be there to assist you in any way possible. There is no time like the present to make the one decision that could change the way you look at yourself. Be positive. Be confident. Besides-only your hairdresser will know for sure...



Call today for further information; 1 (800) 213-4505 or 1 (201) 664-5860.

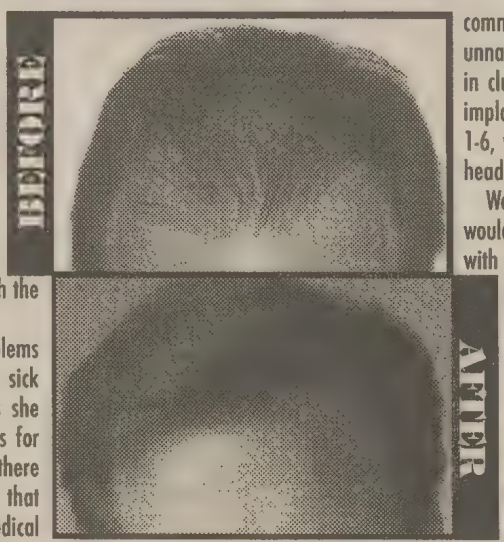
If you're reading this magazine, there's a good chance you're a young man looking for a good time. You comb these pages for the best bar with the best band and the best drink prices. You buy the finest clothes, keep in good shape and even sneak a few hours every weekend out in the sun to look your best...yet no matter how much you spend on clothes, how in shape you are and how tan you look, if you're losing your hair you're not happy with the way you look.

Are you sick of hiding your hair loss problems under an unconvincing baseball hat? Are you sick of feeling uneasy in bars, wondering, "Does she mind if I'm losing my hair?" There are gyms for getting in shape and for a little over a decade there has been a procedure called "Hair Grafting" that can only be performed by members of the medical community who are licensed surgeons. Unlike the unnatural-looking "Hair Plugs," which implant hair in clumps of 18-25, the "Hair Grafting" procedure implants your own hair into bald areas in grafts of 1-6, which is how hair naturally grows out of your head.



We at the Surgical Center For Hair Restoration would like to invite you to our office for a consultation with Dr. John Colaneri to discuss the procedure with him. Bring us your questions, concerns and skepticisms. We'll take the time to explain the procedure in detail and then discuss how hair micrografting can help you to once again look the way you want to look. Call today to schedule a consultation and finally take a serious step toward starting to feel good about the way you look.

Never walk into a "Ladies' Night" feeling nervous again.

JOE HORVATH: A MAN TO REMEMBER

In today's society, many people look out only for themselves. This statement does not apply to one Joe Horvath. Joe was a man who was always trying to help those in his community. Unfortunately, Joe Horvath passed away on November 1, 1995. He was only 50 years old.

Joe dedicated his life to working with the youth of New York City through the Police Athletic League, an organization with which he was associated for almost 35 years. Growing up in the Hell's Kitchen area of Manhattan's west side, Joe was a member of his local PAL Center. At the age of sixteen, he was hired by PAL as a Program Aide and except for a brief stint as a medic in the Army, Joe remained a loyal employee at the New York City Police Athletic League, eventually becoming a Center Director with ever increasing responsibilities at the PAL Central Office. Joe was a devoted servant of children who worked tirelessly on the conferences, activities and scholarship programs that the PAL State Society had to offer the children.

Joe left a wonderful lasting legacy of love and services to our city and especially our children. A man with such a heart and caring soul should be remembered forever. Luckily, Joe Horvath will be remembered. In the near future, 52nd Street and Tenth Avenue will permanently be changed to JOE HORVATH STREET.

Joe has helped our city's children all of his life. Now we are asking you to help Joe's daughter receive the education Joe would have wanted for her. On Saturday, April 19, 1997 there will be the Joe Horvath Rock & Roll Tribute at Sacred Heart Church, "Campbell Hall," located at 457 West 51st Street, between 9th and 10th Avenues, New York City. All proceeds to benefit the education of his daughter, Kathy Jean. This tribute is being funded by the local merchants in the Hell's Kitchen area. All the food and drinks will be served in a U.N. Fair atmosphere. Also, there will be three bands playing and memorabilia for sale at cost. A committee of local representatives will be solely responsible for putting the journal together.

Tickets: $50.00 per person includes open bar, all liquor, beer, wine, etc., buffet, dessert and coffee.

Steppin' Out Under The Stars

YOUR OUTLOOK THIS WEEK

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A raise in pay or similar chance to improve your income is at hand. However, be sure you're ready to assume the extra responsibilities that go with this. Also, exercise initiative in order to take full advantage of this. This weekend, your love life takes precedence.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You reach important new conclusions about your career this week. Signing contracts and reaching agreements are favored later in the week. This weekend, spend some time going through your wardrobe and getting rid of what you don't wear.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Whatever chore you tackle this week is a source of pride for you once accomplished. Your energy is up, and you tackle everything with alacrity. Later in the week, leave those credit cards home while shopping. You don't want to break the budget.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Although you need to reach an agreement concerning a mutual financial concern this week, it's more difficult than you'd anticipated. The other party is not in a cooperative mood. Perhaps you should seek the help of a mediator.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Travel is in the stars for you this week and in the coming weeks. This could be in connection with business or romance. Your attention, though, is on a work-related project which has you somewhat puzzled.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your financial prospects are looking up this week. However, a certain career concern requires further reflection before taking any action. Your social life this weekend is happy and fulfilling.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Singles encounter a new romantic interest while out socializing this week. An important decision is made on a financial or domestic concern with the help of a family member. You receive valuable input from a financial adviser.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An important research or creative project captures your attention this week. Exercise discretion in spending. Friends approach you with a fascinating social suggestion for the weekend. If you accept, a new opportunity awaits.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your attention is on property and domestic concerns this week. Thus, progress on the job is intermittent. Loved ones are on the same wave length over the weekend and harmony reigns.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Benefits reach you through the actions of an adviser this week. Great satisfaction comes from intellectual interests rather than from social activities. What you learn is helpful.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're at your popular and charismatic best this week. You also spend some time mulling over a possible career change. Relax because your thinking is right on target and success is assured.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Bigwigs are happily watching your progress and applauding from the sidelines. It's a week of important career gains for [illegible] and, others seek out your advice on a family matter.

As far as critics go, obviously some of the better known critics like Siskel and Ebert are important because they're powerful critics and a lot of people read them. But I'm almost just as concerned with a guy from a small town paper. I want to hit home runs with everybody here. I really believe in the strength of this film.

How would you describe your typical listener?

They're usually a bit of a wise ass, they would like to tell their bosses off. It's a type of person. And I don't know if there's that much difference between men and women because I have some female fans who are rabid for the show.

What separates you from all the Howard Stern wanna-be's?

There are a lot of people who think you go on the air and just say penis and that's how you get an audience. I know when I was fired from NBC they put a guy on and said to him, "Well, talk for five hours like he does and say some dirty words or something." But that's not what my show is about. You cannot maintain an audience for 20 years saying penis. It's just doesn't work.

You often talk on the air about how much you enjoy surfing the internet. Is the internet truly the future as far as you're concerned?

Right now, I think the internet is in its infancy. It doesn't offer too much to people right now. A lot of it is advertising, hype and junk. A lot of it seems to be like bad magazines, but having said that, I think there is tremendous room for growth. I love going on the computer and chatting just to see what's on people's minds. I think in 20 years the internet will overtake everything.

Even radio?

No, I don't think radio will ever change, at least not for me. From 6 to 10 in the morning people will always be in their cars, and the internet doesn't reach cars.

Will you ever have your own prime time television show?

No. I've been offered every television show that there is, but I just don't have the time to do it. That's why I do the E! show; because I can do them both simultaneously. Radio to me is an important medium. It is so much more gratifying for me to do radio than television. That is why I signed on to do radio for another four years. Radio fuels everything that I do. I know that is what I'm best at. It's the reason why I have such a loyal following. As much as I bitch about getting up at four in the morning, I don't think I could really get along without radio. I wonder what it would be like to wake up and not have that form of expression available to me.

Now that you've become a superstar in the entertainment industry, are you at all concerned that success might take some of the edge away from your radio show?

Yeah, I do worry about it. As you become more famous and well-known you start to worry about your image. Suddenly you start to say maybe I shouldn't say that on the radio because of my image. And as soon as you say that, you're finished. You've got to put that thought out of your head if you want to be attractive and not admit the fact that something is medically wrong with you—or whatever that is when you become boring. So to safeguard against that, I just sort of tap into what made me get into this business and what made me interesting in the first place.

Besides focusing on your relationship with your wife, the film also focuses heavily on your relationship with your co-host, Robin Quivers. How important is Robin to the success of "The Howard Stern Show"?

My relationship with Robin is remarkable. Robin is the backbone of that show and she is the anchor of that show. I would not be successful without Robin. Robin makes me feel funny. Nobody knows how to fire me up like she does.

In other words, she knows how to push your buttons.

Exactly. It's a one in a million shot that you can link up with somebody like that.

Finally, is there anything during your career that you regret?

No, and that probably is a character flaw. I don't regret anything I ever said or did.

Mary McCormack

INTERVIEW BY CHAUNCÉ HAYDEN

Actress Mary McCormack will soon be seen in thousands of theatres across the country playing the role of Howard Stern's wife, Alison, in the upcoming film "Private Parts."

Born in New Jersey, McCormack began her acting career performing in Menotti's opera, "Ahmal and The Night Visitors" at age 12. She attended Trinity College, did regional theater in New Jersey, and has worked in many New York theaters, including The Atlantic Theater Company, Alice's 4th Floor and Naked Angels, where she appeared in the premiere of Jon Robin Baitz's "A Fair Country."

McCormack's other film credits include roles in "Miracle on 34th Street" and "Backfire"; on television in the recurring role of Justine Appleton, the bold and caluclating attorney in the critically acclaimed courtroom drama "Murder One," as well as "Law & Order" and "The Wright Verdicts."

Chauncé Hayden: So how are you holding up considering the fact that you're not only putting in long hours on "Murder One" but you're also in the middle of one of the biggest movie promotions in Hollywood history?

Mary McCormack: Thank God I'm right in the middle of "Murder One." At least that's what I think. I've never done anything as large as anywhere near the scope of promotion that Howard [Stern] does. So, this is all a new experience for me. That's why I think it helps to have "Murder One" because for me it's like a home. I'm here so many hours out of the day that the crew becomes like a family. Every day I'll get an update from some of the crew members. They'll say, "Howard was talking about you again today." I have a touch of stage writing for me. [laughs] Even if I miss the show, I don't miss the show.

Okay, the world wants to know. Describe the experience of what it was like playing Howard Stern's wife.

It was so much fun. It was delicious. And when she's not slow I didn't want her to look at my performance and pick.

Sounds like a lot of pressure.

Well it was, but only because I have a fear of failing. Actually it was done in that it would be very safe. First of all, Alison was really helpful and Howard was tremendously supportive. He was really helpful with me throughout the project in terms of how Alison reacted to different experiences in her life. And [Private Parts" Director] Betty Thomas was wonderful and really helpful to me as well. It was scary. Betty is so perfect. She has the perfect balance of leaving people alone and giving guidance when it's needed.

Is it true you never listened to "The Howard Stern Show" before being picked for the film?

Yes. Isn't that odd? I never once heard the show.

That's amazing.

I know. I just wasn't a radio person. I never commuted or anything so I just never listened to the radio in the morning. Of course, I've seen Howard and I knew who he was. I've seen him on Letterman once or twice but that was it.

What was your opinion of Howard Stern prior to meeting him?

I thought he was a jerk. But I just assumed that. I just listened to what everyone else had said about him, like every other idiot in the world.

What was your initial reaction after hearing Howard Stern on the radio for the first time?

The first time I listened to his show was the morning I was to fly out to meet him. He was on the air painting a woman's breast like an Easter egg.

Did you think that was funny?

Yes, it cracked me up! I was laughing out loud; I thought it was great! In fact it made me want to do the movie more. The funny part about it was not that he was painting the woman's breast—it was what happened afterwards. The woman had been brought by her boyfriend and after they had left the studio Howard made fun of the boyfriend for bringing her to begin with. Instead of it being just about big titties there was a secondary joke. What kind of idiot brings his girlfriend in to have her tits painted, which is the tongue-in-cheek side to his humor. I think that secondary humor is even more funny than the joke itself.

How well did you get to know the real Alison Stern?

Fairly well. She was very helpful in our discussions. I also listened to a bunch of tapes of the two of them together having conversations on the air which was the most helpful of all. Listening to those tapes helped me understand their relationship and why they are together.

Was playing Alison Stern a huge character stretch for you?

In some ways it was. I play Alison from age 20 to around age 40. So it was hard in the sense that I had to figure out what this woman was like at the age of 20. The Alison I play at 20 is not the same woman you see today. Her life is just so different today than it was when they first met at Boston University. Back then it was a normal young love affair. He wasn't Howard Stern, "The King Of All Media," he was just a young guy who had a great sense of humor. And she loved him for that. So you can imagine the changes that Alison went through over the past 20 years.

Besides the real Alison, nobody knows the answer to this next question better than you. How challenging would you say it is to be married to Howard Stern?

Well there are difficulties, the biggest one being the fact that their most private moments are shared with millions of listeners. But there are also a lot of pluses. I say that from knowing Howard—not Howard the radio personality. Alison has two different husbands. There's a husband for four hours in the morning whom she puts in one pocket of her brain. She deals with that by saying over and over, "It's an act, it's an act, it's an act." Then there's Howard the husband who comes home from work and who is a great father and her best friend. So we're talking about two different people. I think that is how she does it. That is the answer to your question.

Some have accused Howard Stern of being chauvinistic toward women. With that in mind, have other women or conservative women's groups given you a hard time for doing the film?

No one has really given me a hard time. I think some people think that. And I guess I thought that too. I think most people who think that Howard is like that haven't really heard the show. If you listen to the show carefully you'll see that it's just satire. I think after seeing the "E!" show [The television version of "The Howard Stern Show" aired on the E! Channel] it all becomes more clear because after he says the thing that might be offensive, you get to see his six-year-old smile and that tongue-in-cheek way about him. Basically you get the idea that he's joking. But to tell you the truth, Chauncé, I'm all for nudity. If you want to get nude, get nude. If you want to show your titties, show them. I think if that's what you want to do, then you should do it.

What would you say is the biggest misconception about Howard Stern?

That he's a jerk. He's actually very compassionate and kind and incredibly smart. I think that is the biggest thing of all; how incredibly smart Howard is. He's also very generous.

As a seasoned actress, were you ever unsure if you could work so closely with Howard, since he has no professional training as an actor?

Oh yeah. I would say before I met him that was a thought. I thought to myself, "What if he can't act?" But as soon as I met him and read with him I knew that he could act. He's so bright. Even in the scenes that we did while I was auditioning he was good, which was kind of scary. Then throughout the film, especially by week two, he was phenomenal.

How do you suppose people in Hollywood are going to respond to Howard's performance?

I think it's going to drive them nuts! I can't wait to see their reaction! It's really neat that he's so good. I mean, yes he's playing himself, but some people say that it's actually harder to play yourself. And he's playing himself through so many ages. You actually see the difference. You get to see the boy grow into a man. It's really neat.

During the making of the film, was there anything that Howard did that got under your skin? Like a little quirk, for instance, that just drove you insane?

Howard is such an avid learner, which is actually a positive and a negative. His thing is saying something new off the top of his head every single minute all day long. So in the movie sometimes that would work. Some of the best stuff in the film would come out of him unrehearsed and then once in a while during my close-up, new lines would still be coming out of his mouth. I'd be like, "Howard, you at least have to say the same thing you just said a minute ago!" And he would say, "But why? I'm trying to keep it fresh for you." (Laughs) But he was endearing because he was trying to help!

Is there a love scene between you and Howard?

Yeah, there is! On our first date we sort of mess around.

What was it like doing a love scene with Howard Stern.

It was great! I had never done one before so I was very nervous. It was weird doing that with a film crew standing around.

Neither one of you had ever done a love scene.

Yeah, it was the first time for both of us so you can imagine we were both scared shitless. I think he was more scared than I because he was shaking. He made it easier though by saying self-effacing things like, "Hey, can we bring in a bag for over my head so Mary doesn't puke?" At one point we were rolling around on the bed on our first date making out and Howard thought he was rubbing his leg on my leg. (Laughs) But actually he was rubbing his leg on the cameraman's leg. So this guy named Mitch got a real good feel from Howard. You might want to call him and ask what it was like to have Howard seductively rub his leg against him!

On a scale from one to 10, how would you rate Howard Stern as a kisser?

A 10! He's a very good kisser. I mean what am I going to say? (Laughs) If I say a five I'm fucked!

You always hear about Hollywood romances where the leading lady falls in love with the leading man. During the filming, did you ever develop a crush on Howard?

(Laughs) Yes, we had a torrid affair! (Pause) Um...no. But we are very good friends. What a question!

Finally, what advice would you give to someone who doesn't want to see "Private Parts" because he or she isn't a Howard Stern fan?

Well, oddly enough it's a love story. You see the side of Howard that you always wonder about plus you will definitely laugh. It's very funny. It's smart-funny; Betty Thomas kind of funny. It's totally unexpected. It's just this strange little funny movie that is coming out of left field. I know everyone, whether they're a fan of Howard Stern or not, will enjoy it.

Well, judging by what everybody is saying about this film, I have a suspicion your career is about to explode.

Gosh, Chauncé, marry me!

Words on FILM

By Krys Longan

"PRIVATE PARTS" — Anyone who is an avid listener of Howard Stern's radio show will probably walk into his autobiographical movie expecting steamy scenes for their eight bucks: lesbians, naked women, dirty jokes, outlandish behavior, and oh, did we mention lesbians?

Well, you will see all those things...and more. Because if you plunk down your hard-earned cash for "Private Parts," you will see something so unexpected, so shocking, so different, you will walk away with an entire new understanding of the man we call The King Of All Media.

Because you will actually see...a love story.

"Private Parts" gives us an overview of what propelled Stern into the difficult and often financially unrewarding world of radio. One scene, in particular, is quite touching: We get to see a seven-year-old Howard (played by the adorable Bobby Borriello) accompany his father to work at a radio station, and view how the seeds of his fixation with the medium were planted. We see Howard in high school and in college, but it is not until he meets his dream girl and future wife Alison (portrayed convincingly by Mary McCormack) that we really see him come to life. Inspired by true love—and okay, maybe a touch of lust—suddenly he is motivated to excel.

Fans of the radio show will enjoy seeing the tender side of Howard Stern (which is the private parts the movie title refers to, not his genitals), but they will probably get more kicks from seeing the king interact with his radio family, Fred Norris and Robin Quivers, who both play themselves in the movie. Quivers has a powerful scene when she is fired from NBC in retaliation for Stern's shenanigans (Stern could not be canned because of a long term contract with NBC), but it is Norris who provides much of the laughs throughout the film. His delivery—when he actually speaks—is delightfully deadpan, and his face is a study of comic understatement. As is frequently the case, however, it is the villain who really steals the show. Kenny, the provincial program director who was Howard's boss at NBC Radio, is convincingly portrayed by Paul Giamatti with a blustering indignity that ranges from the pathetic to the outrageous. He makes an excellent foil for Howard's outrageous antics.

Stern's loyal fans will enjoy all the cameos by Gary Dell'Abate, Jackie Martling, The Kielbasa Queen, Crackhead Bob, Nicole Bass and a host of others. But even those unfamiliar with his radio show will be touched by his struggle to achieve his own brand of greatness in the fickle world of radio, and be moved by the powerful bond that holds Howard and Alison together through richer and poorer. And through a vast variety of naked women...and lesbians, of course. Lots of lesbians. ★★★★

Producer of "The Howard Stern Show"

GARY DELL'ABATE

Endearingly known to Howard Stern listeners as "Baba Booey" Gary Dell'Abate has been the producer of "The Howard Stern Show" for the past 13 years. During that time he has booked some of the biggest names in the entertainment world to be guests on the show, including Arnold Schwarzenegger, David Letterman, John F. Kennedy, Jr., Demi Moore, Roseanne, Sylvester Stallone, Sting, Jay Leno, Jerry Seinfeld, James Taylor and Bob Hope. Dell'Abate's widely recognized on-air persona has made him a huge draw at his live personal appearances across the country.

"I'm proud of my Boy Gary. He accepts being hammered for the good of the show. Gary, Baba Booey, is not a young man anymore. He is 34 and not that far off from my own age, yet I think of him as a college boy who is learning while earning credits. When he started working for me he was a gullible kid right out of Adelphi University. Now he's 34, married to a lovely woman, and he's got a cute little boy."

INTERVIEW BY CHAUNCÉ HAYDEN

Chauncé Hayden: The last time we spoke on the record was six years ago. Did you ever think then that six years later there would be a movie made of your boss's life?

Gary Dell'Abate: I could have imagined it six years ago. But I couldn't have imagined that it would be this good.

Trying not to be biased, will or won't the film live up to the tremendous promotion it's been getting for the last several weeks?

I think it's going to live up to its expectations. Every piece seems to be in place. It's great! People who have seen it thus far have been blown away by how good it is. There's no doubt in my mind Howard could put together a movie. Even if it wasn't that great he would still get people to go out and see it. So I'm sure there are a bunch of people who think, "Well Howard's doing a movie, but how good could it be, because it's Howard? He's not an actor." But after you see how good everyone is in their roles and how good Howard is and how well it's written and how smooth it moves and how funny it is—it will just blow you away.

Since this was your first attempt at acting were you nervous?

I was very nervous! I remember thinking the day before my scene, I haven't seen a script, what I'm I going to do? I can't act! I'm going to fuck this whole movie up! Not only I'm I going to fuck this whole movie up but Howard is going to make fun of me for days! I'm really self-conscious about that kind of stuff.

Did you fuck up?

No. The director, Betty Thomas, is just great to work with. She made me feel really at ease. She's no nonsense. I remember the first day on the set she put her arm around me and said, "All right pal, this is what we're going to do and this is how it's going to happen."

Without giving too much away can you describe your scene in the film?

Everything they had me do was something that had happened on the show a million times. Like there's one scene where I have to convince a women who showed up to get naked but who has changed her mind. I've done that so many times that it's not even acting. I got that rap down to a science.

How do you get women to take their clothes off?

I just say, "Listen, Howard really wants you to do this. If you don't want to do it I'm not going to be able to put you on. I know you want to meet him but it can't be in bra and panties. You have to be totally naked. Naked means naked. Howard thinks that is the best thing I do on the show. I'm pretty dumb but one of the things I know a lot about is talking women into getting naked.

Do you think you could work that same magic outside the studio?

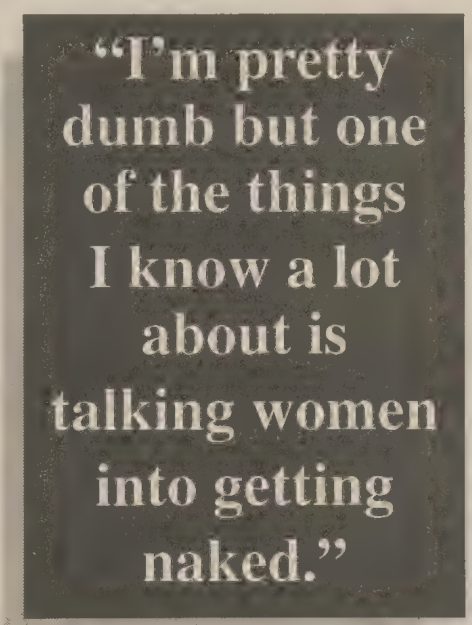
Without Howard as the bait, who's going to get naked?

In the past, many celebrities have been afraid to be associated with the name Howard Stern. Has the anticipated success of the movie changed that?

A little bit. I'm sure we'll see more of that after the film comes out. I think everyone is going to have to treat us a little bit better. Right now I'm getting a lot of comments from publicists like, "Wow, the buzz on the movie is that it's really good." But you know what? A lot of these publicists don't even know what's going on half the time. It's got to be splattered across the front page of everything for them to get it. Once the movie hits number one after the first weekend and then goes on to have legs, I think it's going to be really funny having these publicists call us trying to get people on the show. I think the industry will have a newfound respect for us.

On a scale from one to 10 how would you rate this film?

I would rate it a 10. I really would. Remember when you saw "Animal House" how you loved it and you wanted to go see it again? Listen, "Animal House" wasn't "The Piano." You have to take it for what it is. "Animal House" was just a funny movie. And that's what "Private Parts" is—a funny movie. I wouldn't be surprised if "Private Parts" ends up being like the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" at some point. Every time Jackie comes on everyone will do his laugh and when I come on everybody will probably say, "Hey boss!"



Anyone who's a fan of the Howard Stern Show knows that the name Gary Dell'Abate is synonymous with the name Baba Booey. Does the nickname offend you?

No. I would say that 99 percent of the time the name is endearing to me. I don't even think that I'm insulted by it. Even the other versions of the word like, Fla Fla Flowly, Ma Ma Monky and Ra Ra Retard don't offend me. I mean, Baba Booey is funny. I said it, what am I supposed to do, act like the whole thing didn't happen? (Writers note: Several years ago Dell'Abate, while on the air, mistakingly referred to cartoon character Baba Looey as Baba Booey and has paid the price ever since.) The only thing that wigs me out is when I'm dealing on a business level with a publicist's assistant and I'll say, "Can I please speak to so and so, it's Gary Dell'Abate from 'The Howard Stern Show.'" And the person on the other end will say, "Baba Booey, what's up!" They mean well, but if Bob Denver called the office would they say, hold on Gilligan? I know they don't mean it in a bad way but it is sort of insulting.

"The Howard Stern Show" is not known for keeping off-the-air internal differences off the air. Recently while on the air you had a heated argument with Howard's friend and make-up artist Ralph Cirella. Are the differences between you and Ralph real or on-air schtick?

We just saw each other in the hall today and we didn't talk to each other. My personality conflict with Ralph goes back to Channel 9. We've made efforts over the years to sit down and talk about it but nothing works. It's not just him and I, it's him and everybody. But I agree that there is definitely something more between he and I that I just can't put my finger on. He's a big pain in the ass. I think deep down inside there's a good guy in there but you just don't know when that guy is coming out. He's moody like a chick.

If Ralph is so difficult to get along with, how do you explain his close relationship to Howard Stern?

I think because Howard generally likes the guy. Howard doesn't have a lot of friends that he hangs around with. Ralph will come over and they'll listen to the same music and they'll look through magazines together. They have the same taste. Ralph will pull a picture out of a magazine and tell Howard, "Hey, this is a really good photographer. We should use him on the next shoot." They have the same sensibilities that way. In that sense I think they like hanging out.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but Ralph's relationship with Howard sounds like the relationship that you wanted but never had.

There probably was a small period of time when I felt that way. There was a time when I was a little bit jealous. But that is not what's going on between us now. I got a wife and a kid. I don't have time to hang around Howard's house on weekends anymore and Ralph does. He thinks I'm jealous that he gets to hang around there. But I'm more irritated by his lack of respect for me and the show. Even in the beginning when I was a little jealous he would love to rub it right in my nose. He can't be low key about it.

You mentioned earlier that you have a wife now. Does it take something a little special to be married to one of the crew of the Howard Stern Show?

I don't think my wife fully understood the show right up until we got married. She's really uptight about the private stuff that goes out over the air. How many times have you heard my wife on the air? She hardly ever says anything. She doesn't want to be on the air.

Is she a fan?

No. But of course she listens to the show every day now. There are things that I do on the air that she gets really bummed out about.

Can you give me an example?

This is going back a bit but one of the things that really bummed her out was when I talked on the air about a girl who threw up while I was having sex with her. She said, "Why do you have to talk about that?" But to tell you the truth I don't think my wife personally cares. I think she's embarrassed that one of her friends who listens to the show might think I'm a disgusting human being. However, I think she's starting to get used to it now. ■

CHAUNCE HAYDEN'S EYE ON SCORES
333 EAST 60TH STREET
212.421-3600

A Weekly Look Inside New York City's Most Sophisticated Gentlemen's Club & The Celebrities Who Can't Get Enough Of It...

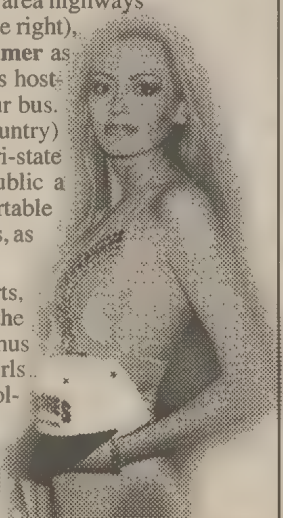
Last week I told you that Hollywood's newest star, Howard Stern, after a full day of interviews with the press to promote his new movie "Private Parts," found time to stop by Scores for several hours and mingle with some of the hottest peelers in the world. Anyhow, Howard was so impressed (as usual) with the girls that he arranged for seven of the them to appear with him on "Saturday Night Live" this past weekend. Kudos go out to Allie, Casey, Leah, Andrea, Savannah, Athena and Lola for the great job they did making Howard and Norm MacDonald look like studs in front of one of the biggest viewing audiences SNL has had in a long, long time.

Special note to "Suddenly Susan" star Brooke Sheilds: Have these girls appear on your show and quick!

For those of you who didn't get enough of Howard on SNL, don't worry. On Thursday night MTV will feature more than 3 hours of Howard Stern mania as the music network captures all the excitement from the "Private Parts" premiere party live from Madison Square Garden. Even more importantly, a national television audience will get an encore look at some of the girls Howard is always raving about. This time Madison, Natalia and Krystal will be proudly featured.

Obviously Howard knows a good thing when he sees it. Not only did he use several Scores dancers for his television appearances; he also sought out Scores to assist in his search for two stunning women to appear alongside him for many of the upcoming magazine covers that will feature the "King of All Media" in all his glory, complemented this time by Patrice and Stacey.

Scores also was represented on our area highways last week by the likes of Brittany (see right), Valentina, Carla, Pamela and Summer as they proudly offered their services as hostesses for the "Private Parts" lead tour bus. The bus (one of many across the country) spent last week stopping at various tri-state area locations and offered to the public a brief clip of the movie in a very comfortable setting. Sort of like a Scores on wheels, as it were.



According to many advance reports, "Private Parts" will be by far one of the most successful movies ever made; thus congratulations go out to all the girls from Scores who have helped make Hollywood history.

P.S. Did I tell you the Irish super rock group U2 was at the club last week!?

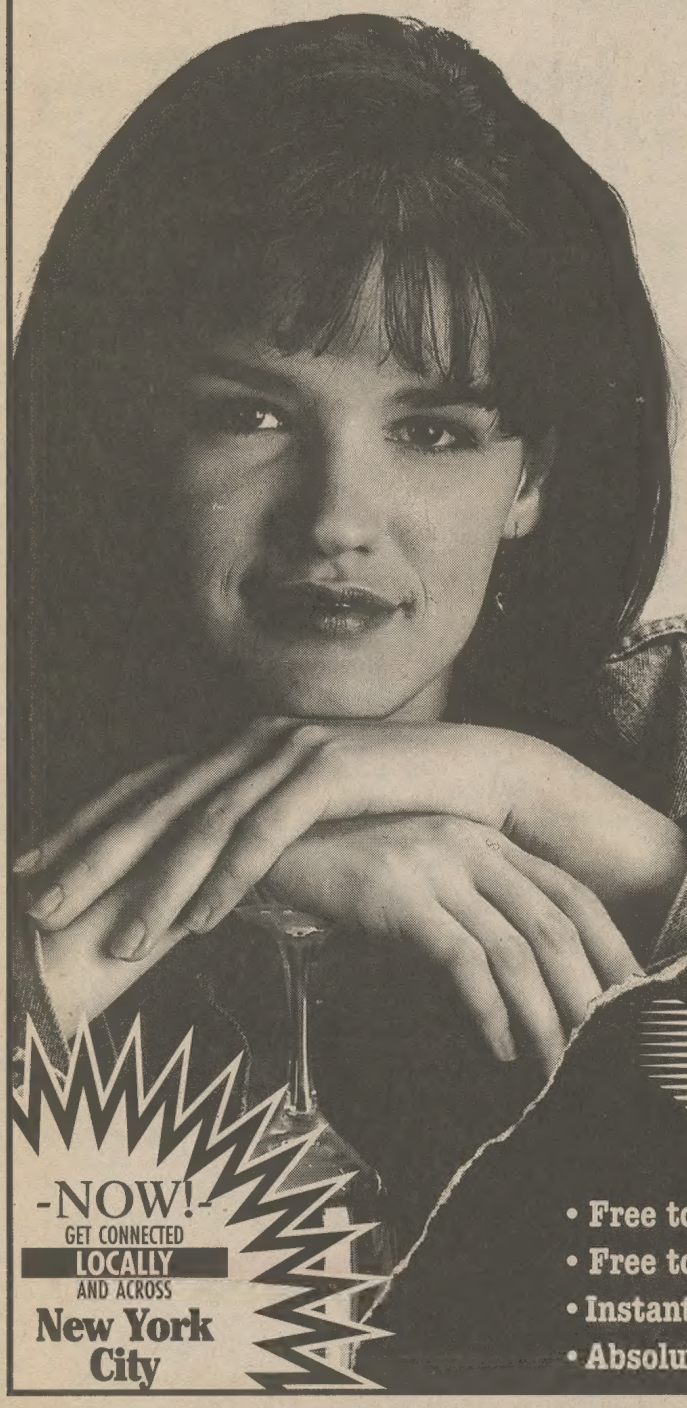
REAL-LIFE TELEPERSONALS PRESENTS:
"Why I used Telepersonals"



SHE SAID

"I was single, shy and didn't like bars.

Why so shy? Well, being a party animal isn't a career ambition of mine anyway – and I couldn't care less about the bar scene and the guys who live for it. Telepersonals gave me a chance to open up and talk – but only to guys I really wanted to. Also, you can get to know all about someone before you ever meet. That's why I agreed to do this ad campaign. Telepersonals really works. After all, I finally met Matthew..."

Della Martin – 21, college student, allergic to singles bars, and 100% genuine Telepersonals user.
